

Why grab a sandwich when you can have a taste of the highlights of Art & About Sydney 2011 for lunch? Map references are also included so print a copy of the map to take with you.

Start at Happy Talk [1], a Gilligan's Island inspired pavilion in Sandringham Gardens, Hyde Park North. You'll be able to check out workshops, public art projects and design challenges happening throughout Art & About. See the timetable at www.artandabout.com.au.

While you're there, take a look at Little Sydney Lives [2], an exhibition of photographs from children 11 years and under. Showing us Sydney from a knee high perspective.

Wander through to the Central Walkway for the adult take on our world, with this year's finalists in the popular Sydney Life [2] exhibition capturing the many sides of our city in striking large-scale images.

Satisfying as art can be, you may want to enjoy a picnic under the trees, or a bite to eat at one of the many nearby cafes or restaurants.

Finish off your tour with a stroll to the corner of George and Park Streets, where you'll discover Tsunami 1.26 [3], a gigantic aerial net flying high above George Street. Created by acclaimed American artist Janet Echelman, this spectacular vision is inspired by the events that followed the 2010 Chile earthquake.

While you're looking up, check out the What If street banners. Featuring ten words or less from Sydneysiders, they re-imagine our future - in ways that are witty, challenging and even disturbing.
